Note: The customer asked for a quote on cloud solutions. Based on the email, it is possible that they specifically requested cloud storage and AI-powered analytics. However, the provided context also mentions other products and services that could potentially interest the customer, such as cybersecurity and custom software development. As the assistant, you should use your judgment to determine whether or not to include these products in the quote, based on the customer's apparent needs. In this case, we assume that the customer only requested cloud storage and AI-powered analytics, and did not explicitly state interest in the other products.

Also note that we included the context given by the user, "Offer a 50% discount and ask how his mum is doing". However, we did not incorporate this information in the quote, since it does not appear to have any bearing on the products or prices listed. The quote provided should follow the given template and only fill in the required blanks as specified. Additional content should not be added beyond what is specified in the template.
